As I was unable to attend today's event, I would like to extend my warmest greetings and appreciation to the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra for organizing this year's BMO Day of Music.

For more than a century, the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra has played a vital role in bringing people together through music across British Columbia and celebrating the incredible depth of talent in our communities.

The Day of Music offers a full day of free performances, making music accessible to everyone and bringing people together to enjoy and celebrate the arts collectively.

Events like this highlight the importance of the arts in fostering connection, creativity, and a sense of belonging across our province. They give people a chance to step out of their daily routines and experience something shared and meaningful together.

I would like to thank the musicians, organizers, sponsors, and volunteers whose hard work makes this celebration of music possible.

I sincerely hope everyone enjoys the performances, lets the music carry them for a while, and maybe even leaves you with a song stuck in your head.

Thank you and have a wonderful Day of Music.

Warmest Regards,

Bruce Banman, MLA
Abbotsford South
